

5. Correct. The answer is false. It is false that nuclear energy is the attractive force between negatively charged electrons and the positively charged protons. Nuclear energy is the force that holds the protons and neutrons of an atom together in the nucleus.