

11. Correct. The answer is false. If income increased the whole demand curve would shift to the right or increase. This would move us along the supply curve increasing price and quantity supplied. It would not increase supply since this is a movement of the whole supply curve, which would only be caused by changing the other fixed variables in the supply curve.