

12. Correct. The answer is true. If cost of capital increased it would shift the supply curve to the left or decrease supply, this would move us along the demand curve to a higher price and a lower quantity demanded. It may also decrease demand as the cost of putting in coal burning equipment increased.