

13. Correct. The answer is true. A decrease in supply raises price and lowers quantity. An increase in demand raises price and raises quantity. Since both increase price, we know that price increases. But since one raises quantity and the other lowers quantity, the net effect would be uncertain. It would depend on which quantity effect is larger.