

17. Correct. The answer is true. The quantity of coal demanded is positively related to the number of buyers, the price of substitutes such as oil or gas, and income or industrial activity. It is negatively related to the price of coal and complementary goods such as capital.