

7. Correct. The answer is false. Fossil fuels produce the largest share of electricity. In 1999, coal produced over 1/3 of the electricity worldwide and all fossil fuels produced over 60%. Renewables mostly hydroelectricity produced about a fifth and nuclear a somewhat smaller percent than renewables.