

6. Incorrect. The answer is false not true. In recent electricity restructuring electricity transmission and distribution are most often considered natural monopolies not candidates for competition whereas generation, wholesaling and retailing are considered candidates for competition not natural monopolies.