

12. Correct. The answer is true. Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act (PURPA) allowed small producers using renewables and combined heat and power producers access to the grid. The Energy Policy Act of 1992 opened up the wholesale market even further in the United States.