

21. Correct. The answer is true. Although in principle, government ownership can be as economically efficient as private ownership often political goals and lack of market discipline make them less efficient.