

24. Correct. The answer is false. Brownouts are a generator's inability to maintain voltage while blackouts are significant interruption of electricity. Both, brownouts and blackouts are routine occurrences in many poor countries because of the insufficient capital for developing new generation capacity.