

1. Correct. The answer is true. Consumer surplus is the area above price and below demand and producer surplus is the area below price and above marginal cost or supply. Producer surplus is also measured by economic profits. Refer back to Figure 6.1 to see that competitive markets maximize this area.