

7. Correct. The answer is false. The Natural Gas Act of 1938 regulated only interstate pipelines, (in a much stricter way than intrastate pipelines). Any producer affiliated with interstate pipelines was regulated by the NGA; thus, vertical integration was discouraged by regulation.