

41. Correct. The answer is false. With open access the pipeline companies are divested of scheduling and dispatch of gas production and consumption. So they are charging a high price for any imbalance between the scheduled and contracted amount. Now the gas marketers are trying to match these supply demand imbalances on the spot, short or long-term basis by bringing in the numerous producers and consumers.