

9. Correct. The answer is true. The European Energy Charter Treaty, signed in 1994 by 49 nations, was aimed at supporting an energy reform in the former Eastern Block and assuring safe energy supplies from those areas. It encourages increases in competition, and promotes technology transfers and environmental goals.