

20. Correct. The answer is false. It is true that the supply curve is the horizontal sum of the marginal cost curves. However in the Cournot duopoly model, the duopolists face the same demand but they have typically different cost functions. They choose quantity to maximize profit given the other firm output, while in competitive model they take the price as given.