

13. Correct. The answer is true. A method of marketable permits encourages polluters who can attain low abatement costs to pollute less than polluters whose abatement costs are very high.