

21. Correct. The answer is false. Operating cost determines dispatch order, with the lowest cost plants being dispatched first. This represents an economic dispatch or merit order, and not an environmental merit order. This explains why coal plants are dispatched before gas plants.