

11. Incorrect. The answer is false not true. Each consumer has an indefinite number of indifference curves, each one representing a different utility level.