

15. Correct. The answer is false. Although China is the largest primary energy producer and the largest fossil fuel producer in the world according to U.S. EIA statistics, it is a large and diversified economy and only gets about 5.5% of its GDP from fossil rents.