

20. Correct. The answer is false. Paying a tax or having to buy a permit for carbon dioxide emissions will likely raise the costs of fossil fuels to buyers and low the price to suppliers. One of the likely results is that less of the fuel will be economically recoverable more of the fossil fuel will be left in the ground.

