

6. Correct. The answer is false. Specific cultures may be viewed as shallow and superficial by their more diffuse neighbors. Specific cultures may find it very time consuming to work in diffuse cultures. For them the "getting to know you questions and activities" may seem not only time consuming but may even be an invasion of privacy. Diffuse cultures may seem cold compared to specific cultures. Private space is larger and less compartmentalized as in specific ones.