

16. Correct. The correct answer is false. Particularists believe in relative values and norms that are particular to the circumstances. Universalist western cultures want detailed contracts and go by the book.