

16. Incorrect. The correct answer is false not true. Particularists believe in relative values and norms that are particular to the circumstances. Universalist western cultures want detailed contracts and go by the book.